In September 2013, Wacom CVP Matthias Jüppener decided to re-

engineer the whole process, which would allow for a shorter time-line for the submission process. The new submissions with the "BAC Master" seal from Wacom can be published on the website only within a matter of days. In 2015, Wacom opened a second office in San Jose, California, employing about 40 people in engineering, QA and quality assurance.

Sustainability In 2011, Wacom announced support for the Paris Climate Agreement to fight global warming by reducing its environmental impact. The company also created an internal "green desk", making sure that the quality of its products are certified by third-party environmental organizations.
